"We have a list of all persons we have harmed and to whom we are willing to make amends. We made it when we took inventory. We subjected ourselves to a drastic self-appraisal. Now we go out to our fellows and repair the damage done in the past. We attempt to sweep away the debris which has accumulated out of our effort to live on self-will and run the show ourselves. If we haven't the will to do this, we ask until it comes. Remember it was agreed at the beginning we would go to any lengths for victory over alcohol."

Step Eight - "Made a list of all persons we had harmed and became willing to make amends to them all."

"One of the key words in the Eighth Step is the word all. I am not free to select a few names for the list and to disregard others. It is a list of all persons I have harmed. I can see immediately that this Step entails forgiveness because if I'm not willing to forgive someone, there is little chance I will place his name on the list. Before I placed the first name on my list, I said a little prayer: 'I forgive anyone and everyone who has ever harmed me at any time and under any circumstances.'

"It is well for me to contemplate a small, but very significant, two-letter word every time the Lord's Prayer is said. The word is as. I ask, 'Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us.' In this case, as means, 'in the same manner.' I am asking to be forgiven in the same manner that I forgive others. As I say this portion of the prayer, if I am harboring hatred or resentment, I am inviting more resentment, when I should be calling on the spirit of forgiveness."

Tradition Eight - "Alcoholics Anonymous should remain forever nonprofessional, but our service centers may employ special workers."

"Alcoholics Anonymous will never have a professional class. We have gained some understanding of the ancient words 'Freely ye have received, freely give.' We have discovered that at the point of professionalism, money and spirituality do not mix. Almost no recovery from alcoholism has ever been brought about by the world's best professionals, whether medical or religious. We do not decry professionalism in other fields, but we accept the sober fact that it does not work for us. Every time we have tried to professionalize our Twelfth Step, the result has been exactly the same: Our single purpose has been defeated."

Eighth Step Principle

Note: About the A.A. Principles - Bill W., considered each Step to be a spiritual principle in and of itself. In the Twelve Steps and Twelve Traditions, he outlined the spiritual principles behind each Step. The most important of all the principles is humility.

Love

"The willingness to make amends requires compassion. Considering that many of those we harmed also harmed us, it may require a bit of empathy as well. We must set aside our anger toward these individuals, recognizing that we have made our own mistakes. We seek only to clean our own side of the street.

"In addition, love is not only toward those we harmed, but all those we encounter. The best way to prevent ourselves from needing to make amends in the future is to do right by people the first time around. Herein lays the concept of respect.

“Love and respect can be feelings. They can be demonstrated in our actions and words. To us, respecting other people means recognizing and acknowledging their worth and value as human beings, regardless of their background, race, or creed. It’s demonstrated in all our day-to-day relations—refraining from demeaning others for their ideas and opinions, refusing to laugh at racist or sexist jokes, putting prejudices aside, and staying open-minded. We show respect not just by what we refrain from doing but also by intentional acts, such as being on time, dressing appropriately, or giving our full attention to the person or people we’re with.

“So, remember, love and respect are more than feelings. They’re things that we do. Which is why Step Eight only matters when we follow it with Step Nine.”

Step Eight Prayer

Dear God,

*“ I ask your help in making my list of all those I have harmed.
I will take responsibility for my mistakes and I will be forgiving to others as You have forgiven me.
God, please grant me the willingness to begin my restitution. This I pray.”
Amen.*

I Don’t Have to Look Over My Shoulder Anymore

Written and submitted by an Anonymous Grateful and Sober Alcoholic, Jackson County, District 16

Looking at the train wreck of my alcoholic life from afar is one thing but taking actions to repair and mend what is salvageable is a whole other adventure. Step Eight helps me to live in the greatest peace, in partnership with others and myself.

While Step Four was my personal housecleaning, Step Eight is an extension of the housecleaning, a social application of the shame reduction that I began in Step Four. In Step Eight I made a list of people I harmed and the specific ways that I harmed them. Since I mustered enough courage to work on the previous steps while staying sober, I had to use this same level of courage to develop a compassionate spirit to come up with that list.

*“There is no love without forgiveness, and there is no forgiveness without love.”
Bryant H. McGill*

Step Eight is the beginning of the process of making amends, forgiving others, and possibly being forgiven by them, in addition to forgiving myself. By making this list of the people I harmed and became willing to make amends,

I had to work toward healing the past with others and to learn how to live in the world with my head held high, looking people right in the eye.

I had to identify the damage I did to others and list the names of these people I hurt. It didn't matter if the harm I caused was from selfishness, carelessness, anger, arrogance, dishonesty, or any other character defect ... it didn't even matter if I didn't intend to cause harm. All that mattered was that the list had to be a completely thorough list containing the names of people I lied to, stole from, cheated on, treated badly or indifferently, living or dead, whether or not the people wanted to hear from me. It didn't matter. I had to be incredibly honest. But I was just making a list.

Some of the people on the list were people that caused me harm and pain, and if I hadn't done a good Step Four through Step Seven, I would have been too mad to include them on my Step Eight list. However, in these previous steps, I learned to pray for the willingness to have compassion and forgiveness for them and to let go of the resentment. What helped is that I admitted to my part in the deal which was the point anyway. So, when I got to Step Eight, I was able to put them on the list. I wanted to be free, I wanted to have the Promises in my life, I wanted to remove anything that could put my sobriety in jeopardy. I wanted to be free and have peace in my life, so I swallowed that stupid pride and got on to the work at hand.

One of the wonderful things about recovery is that we become willing to let go of resentment, blame and self-pity, and recognize that we are all just human beings. So instead of getting caught up in those old feelings of anger and bitterness, we just had to put pen to paper and list those names of people I harmed. I had to remember that I was cleaning up my side of the street, not someone else's. I had to take responsibility for my part because I wanted more than anything to rebuild the relationships that I damaged because of my alcoholism.

Beginning to restore these relationships starts in Step Eight, but the Step's other rewards are huge too – spiritual blessings like forgiveness, honesty, courage, willingness, accountability, humility, and compassion. Willingness and courage allow me to list who I harmed holding myself accountable. By honestly admitting I am a flawed human and have made mistakes, I develop compassion for myself. By forgiving those who harmed me I am set free, thus in forgiving those who harmed me, I extend an authentic love that requires humility. I am on my way to truly being free from the grips of my disease.

There's a level of honesty in working the Twelve Steps that A.A.s exalt in because of the freedom it brings. The reason one of our slogans is "happy, joyous and free!" is because without alcohol in our lives we have freedom to take a deep breath and exist in the day, relieved of that feeling of waiting for the other shoe to drop, the jig to be up, or the police to come knocking. Remember that it takes time to heal from traumas. As alcoholics we want to rush to the end result. However, there is no prize for doing any of the Steps as fast as we can. Impulsively rushing in to make amends without taking the time to work with our sponsors could be as detrimental as not making amends. It's never too late, but sometimes it's too early. So, if I may impart some advice:

Focus on a comprehensive Step Eight list, then let prayer and meditation determine the time for forgiveness to come. When we forgive, we heal. When we let go, we grow. When we are free, we don't have to look over our shoulder ... anymore.

“Every A.A. has found that he can make little headway in this new adventure of living until he first backtracks and really makes an accurate and unsparing survey of the human wreckage he has left in his wake.”

From Within the Walls - I Want To Be Better. I Will Be Better.

The Mill Creek A.A. Group at the Oregon State Penitentiary (OSP) in Salem, Oregon celebrated its 77th anniversary on May 3, 2021. It was established in 1944 making it the longest running prison A.A. group in the nation. OSP is Oregon's only maximum security prison.

"In this issue [their newsletter named Run of the Mill – 1944 and Beyond], we're discussing Steps Seven and Eight. Step Seven says, 'Humbly asked Him to remove all our shortcomings.' Ok, ask God, whatever that means to you, to get rid of your faults. Good idea. We should all definitely do that. However, honestly, good luck. It's tricky. Can we teach ourselves not to be such screw-ups? Absolutely. Remove them completely? I don't know. Maybe. Let's work on it..."

"Step Eight, however, says, 'Made a list of all persons we had harmed and became willing to make amends to them all.' All right, now we're talking. Here's one of my favorite steps. Why? Because it's so stinkin' hard. The goal of this step is not only to take responsibility of our mistakes, but now, to those very people we've harmed, try to make up for them. For some of us, including me, that would be a lifelong process. How many people have I hurt with my selfishness, my willingness to put me above them? Uh, a lot..."

"So how do we do it? How do we even get started? Well, first things first, we start with those we care for most, right? Our family, our kids, wife, mom and dad (mine have already passed, so I'm screwed on that one) brothers and sisters. Maybe, we start with those that are suffering right now because they, still at this very moment, are paying for our bad decisions. How many people are hurting because we're in prison, sitting in a cage every day? (And not where we should be, with those who need us, love us, depend on us) I know it's tough to even think about, but we have to, don't we? Some even get mad when you ask them to think about how many of their closest family are right now paying for their stupid and selfish decisions. It's too hard, too much guilt, too much pain to fully take responsibility for our hurtful actions. Believe me, I know, I feel it every day. I want to punch myself in the face, scream in the mirror, 'What the hell is wrong with you!?!' The answer? I still don't really know.

"So many issues... All I know now is I don't want to do it anymore. Yes, sometimes it's good to figure out why we have done the things we have done. Daddy issues, mommy issues, God doesn't love me... However, sometimes the truth is, who cares! Sometimes the best thing to do is to just realize you don't want to be that man anymore and simply, don't be that man anymore. Sometimes, just making the decision not to be such an asshole to those you love is enough inspiration to make the choice to actually not do it anymore. We're grown ass men, we do what we want, right?"

"So, what do we really want? Bottom line, I don't want to be an idiot anymore. I don't want to hurt those I love. I want to be better. I want to be the dad my kids deserve, the husband my wife truly desires, the friend those closest to me need. Sometimes, just realizing that you want to be better, allows you to take the steps to do just that. Make the decision to put others ahead of yourself. Why? Because you want to! Because that's who you see yourself as. It doesn't need to be some difficult thing. We are strong-minded men.

"Sometimes spending years figuring out why we're so screwed up is sometimes just a waste of f**king time. We need to see ourselves as exactly the good and honorable men that we are, and then, just do it! Enough is enough! There are people right at this very moment who need us, miss us, want to hold us, talk to us, and share their lives with us. We owe it to them to be there. We owe it to ourselves to be there. That is where we are meant to be. That is where we will be most satisfied, happy, content, at peace. That is where we have to arrive as soon as possible. We must work hard, be diligent, fight as hard as we can to get there. So much is riding on our success. We can do it. If we must do it alone, we will. But the fact is, we don't have to. That's what our group is. We're not alone. You are not alone! We're in this thing together.

"Most of all, that is what our group is meant to represent. We are the support system for ourselves. Just sitting in a meeting, whether we talk or not, whether we're bored out of our minds or not, just being there is proving to ourselves that getting there, to us, is absolutely all-important. And you know what? We are getting there. Day by day, we're that much closer to where we need to be. You can do it! You will do it! In fact, you're doing it right now."

The Stage of Fear and Insecurity

Written and Faithfully Submitted by Rick R.

Shakespeare wrote, "All the world's a stage," and we each play our part.
My "stage" was in a bar room, and that's where I got my start.

It was the place where I felt safe to dream of things to be.
"I think I'll be an astronaut." It all made sense to me.
Where fear and insecurity were words I never hear.
For they were safely locked away, behind a keg of beer.

But this illusion can only last so long, and the Piper we must pay.
The fallacy was ripped away, and I had to face the day.

Taking care of you is important

I had to find a different stage and play a different role,
To face my insecurities and fears would be my goal.

Instinctive fear is not a fault that I need to replace,
For it saves me from recklessness and falling on my face.

Irrational fear is where I falter, whenever I'm in doubt,
While doing shameful things that I don't like to talk about.

In later years, I changed my role to acting like a clown.
My drinking used to mask these things, that weighed my conscience down.

Desperation was the final roll that brought me to my knees.
My conscience told me, "Call A.A. and deal with your disease."

It's in the program that I learned the habits of right living.
Abandoning all the taking and replacing it with giving.

A.A. has been the answer, and I go there every day,
Now acting like a grown-up, knowing God directs the play.

Today, My Life Is Not What It Used To Be

Written and submitted by Winslow C.

Countless times during the first few weeks of my sobriety, I stumbled my way through days and nights. I had no clue what the f**k I was doing. Would A.A. really solve my problems? Do I really want to stay sober for the rest of my life? I was an absolute mess with so many questions and doubts. In fact, I just saw my first sponsor the other day, and we began to reminisce about those days ... at my expense. But he said one thing that was poignant to me. He said that even though I was a sad pup full of fear and uncertainty, I somehow knew that I was in a safe place in the rooms. I was at peace there.

Truth! I did feel safe in the rooms of A.A. I still feel safe in the rooms, but especially during those early days of recovery. I felt so safe that I would go to about five to six meetings a day in those early days. Outside the rooms was scary to me. I couldn't trust anyone, and no one trusted me. I couldn't drive because I lost my license. I had no car anyway. I was serving my 325 hours of community service. As a four-time convicted felon, once a week, I would visit my probation officer. I couldn't find a decent job. I had no money, I was depressed. I was lonely and alone, and I remember thinking often that drinking would make the dumpster fire of my life just seem more tolerable. I was a broken man severely weighted down by guilt, shame, self-pity, anger, remorse, and self-loathing disgust. My sponsor told me once that I was a loose cannon. Hell, I sure was.

Life is Good®

But, yeah, in the rooms, all was good. I was making friends. I was learning. I was learning to pray to God. I was hearing that life, not just life, MY LIFE can be good. I felt secure and safe in the rooms. I believed in my heart that if I just stuck it out and stayed sober, worked the Steps with my sponsor, trusted God, cleaned house, and helped another poor ole sap like me, then maybe I too can have a good life in recovery. But I had to be willing, I had to be open-minded, and most importantly I had to be honest. Well, hell, I was willing to do and be whatever my sponsor asked of me. But I wanted a better life. No really I just wanted all the madness to end, and then maybe I could learn to have a good life.

Man, O, man, was I right!! I'm not saying that my life is perfect now, or even that it is as good as it can be. It doesn't have to be. What I am saying is that today almost five years later my life is a far cry from the shit show it was back then. I for one know who I am. I know my values, I know what I stand for, I know how to love a woman truly and faithfully, I strongly believe in the Power of God in my life, I vehemently know that I put all my faith in Him, and I know that I don't have to control and run shit and people to be happy. Hell yeah, today I am FREE, no longer a slave to addiction, to others, to situations, to sin, to my thoughts and feelings. No way!! Today, I am a better person, a better man, a better son, a better husband, a better father, and I'm just better. Today, I am a grateful sober alcoholic who knows God and understands the value of being honest, humble, at peace, doing the right thing all the time and in all my affairs, and being of service to others.

Today, I am no longer afraid. I am no longer fearful, uncertain, or apprehensive. Today, I walk in humility and in faith in God leading the way revealing His will for me and my life as long as I stay in constant contact with Him. So, now, I pray ... often. I thank Alcoholics Anonymous for its program of hope and recovery and the beautiful people and friends I today call my family. Thank you, thank you, thank you. I will always be indebted to you all. Thank you and I love you all.

Step Eight - Making a List

Written and Submitted by Rick R.

When I first got to Alcoholics Anonymous and surrendered, I did not have a clue about the depth I would have to delve into my past behaviors to free myself from all the guilt and shame that resulted from them.

I thought that all I would be talking about was my drinking habits. When faced with the Twelve Steps. I had my own way of being selective about what part of the suggestions I would embrace and which suggestions I would simply dismiss as, "ok for you, but not necessary for me."

I did not think my problems were about mental, emotional, and spiritual matters. If I could just stop drinking, things would be just fine. It didn't take long for me to realize what they were explaining to me about the wreckage of the past and how to relieve myself of the horrible memories that extended all the way back to my adolescent years.

I was one of the fortunate ones that lost the obsession to drink from the very first day, so that was never a problem for me. I had taken Step One, but I dismissed Steps Two and Three as being okay for the religious folks, but I could do without them. Steps Four, Five, Eight and Nine were the ones that I did not want to face, but by the time I had been sober for about two years, I finally let down my guard and did Steps Four and Five. The relief I got from being fearless and thorough about those two steps gave me the desire and courage to proceed through Steps Six and Seven, and those two steps will never be finished, as they are basically about spiritual growth concerning my thoughts and actions.

Then, came Step Eight, and the need to identify those people that I had harmed in the past and I would have to make amends to. Can they be serious? I don't think that a day ever went by during my drinking days that I didn't do something to harm someone. This list would be endless. With that thought in mind, I delayed doing it until I settled down and came up with an understanding that I could start my list and see where it would lead to. I began with the people I let down the most such as my first wife, my son, my siblings, my mother, and my closest friends who were like family to me. Then, I spiraled outward to the people I worked with or played with, such as golfing and fishing, etc. Then, as I started to remember all of those drinking buddies, bartenders, and girlfriends through all those years, and I had to be realistic about it.

To do this, I could spend the rest of my life chasing people down to apologize and that is when I had to step on the breaks. Thinking that I would need to chase down all of those ships in the night was what held me back from doing it. What I finally did was I first had to be sure that I no longer did those regrettable deeds of yesterday, so that I was not being hypocritical about it. Then, I handled the ones who were renting room in the front of my brain box. Then, as I said, I spiraled outward and handled the ones that were closest to me.

As time went on, I found the occasion when I would run into an old friend, and if I had anything left undone, I would ask him, "Have you ever done something that you really regretted?" His answer is usually, "Hell, yes, who hasn't?" Then I would say, "Can we talk?" This leveled the playing field. Who can fault a person who, like him, has made mistakes, but then tried to correct them, made restitution, and now lives an honest unselfish life?

None of us are perfect. Do not be bogged down by overthinking this Step, but, on the other hand, be prepared to jump at the opportunity when it arrives.

Paddy O'Donnell was driving home from O'Hara's Authentic Irish Pub after downing a few on St. Paddy's Day in honor of his namesake, Saint Paddy himself. He turns a corner on County Cork Road and much to his horror, even with his foggy eyesight, spies a tree in the middle of the road. He swerves to avoid it and in the nick of time he realizes that there is yet another tree directly in his path. He swerves again and discovers that his drive home has turned into a freakin' nightmarish slalom course with downed trees all over creation, causing him to veer from side to side to avoid total disaster.

Barely keeping his car from careening off the edge of the narrow road and rolling down the embankment, as Paddy nears his house, he hears the comforting sound of a police siren and brings his car to a stop in his driveway. "Must have been a helluva storm while I was in O'Hara's," Paddy mused, slumping behind the wheel, palms sweating profusely from the ordeal he has just been through.

The officer parks behind Paddy's car, cautiously approaches the driver's window and asks Paddy what on earth he was doing. Paddy, confused at the question, commences his tale of horror: swerving from side to side and nearly missing the trees strewn all over the road when the officer stops him in mid-sentence and says, "The great Saint be with me. Fer Christ sakes, Paddy, yer dodgin' yer air freshener!"

A.A. Oregon Area 58 News

According to its website, Area 58 does not report many events occurring on an Area basis, except the Area Assemblies in September and November later this year. So, you ask, what is the Area Assembly?

The Area Assembly is a meeting held quarterly each year, in different parts of the state in which GSRs and Committee members assemble to discuss Area affairs and to elect officers and a delegate to the General Service Conference held each Spring in New York. Assemblies are hosted by one of the Area's 37 Districts. The Committee consists of the DCMs of each of the participating Districts, the elected Area officers and Committee chairpersons, the delegate and alternate delegate.

Service Committees take care of the internal functions of Area 58 and provide outreach activities to carry the A.A. message to the suffering alcoholic and to raise community awareness. The Area Committee or their alternate, all GSRs or their alternates, the delegate and alternate and the Area chairperson and alternate are voting members. However, all members of A.A. are encouraged to participate in the workshops and sharing sessions of the Assembly.

Area Assemblies for the remainder of this year are as follows:

Date/Time: Friday – Sunday, September 17 – September 19, 2021, Times are TBA
Where: Yamhill County Fairgrounds, McMinnville, Oregon

Date/Time: Friday – Sunday, November 19 – November 21, 2021, Times are TBA
Where: Ashland Hills Hotel, Ashland, Oregon

Visit Area 58's website for more information at <https://www.aa-oregon.org/upcoming-assemblies/> or contact Gabriel K, Oregon Area 58 Alternate Chair, at (541) 525-8441 or chair-alt@aa-oregon.org.

"Self-support begins with me because I am part of us – the group. We pay our rent and utility bills, buy coffee, snacks and A.A. Literature. We support our central office, our area committee, and our General Service Office. If it were not for those entities, many new people would never discover the miracles of A.A."

Contributions to the Jackson County A.A. Central Office, Josephine County A.A. Intergroup or Districts 16 or District 7 support their services to A.A. members and groups throughout the Rogue Valley.

Your contributions help ensure that the A.A. message is carried to anyone anywhere around the Valley. Many of the services that these service boards provide A.A. groups and members cost financial resources.

So, we are asking A.A. members to contribute $1, $2 or even $5 a year for each year of sobriety – others may give a penny or a nickel a day for each day of their sobriety. All contributions are very much appreciated.

"I am responsible. When anyone, anywhere, reaches out for help, I want the hand of A.A. always to be there. And for that: I am responsible."

A.A. History - Did You Know?

This month, we go way back in American history before A.A. to see a little of the past that in some roundabout way led to the formation of A.A. But first, a brief etymological lesson of the word "alcohol."

The word "alcohol" derives from the Arabic "al-kuhul," a term applied to the chemical compound ethyl alcohol or ethanol. The Arabic term denotes "kohl," a fine powder of antimony used as eye makeup. In its earliest usage, the word "alcohol" denoted any fine powder. Alchemists of medieval Europe later applied the word to essences obtained by distillation. It was not until the 18th century that the word came to designate the intoxicating ingredient in liquor.

In 1774, the earliest American writing on alcoholism was authored by Anthony Benezet of Philadelphia, PA (1713 – 1784). He was an abolitionist and temperance advocate. He wrote a 48-page essay titled The MIGHTY DESTROYER DISPLAYED in some Account of the Dreadful Havock made by the mistaken Use as well as Abuse of DISTILLED SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS. At this point in time, the word "temperance" was often used to encourage moderation in drinking and later evolved into "teetotalism" which advocated total abstinence.

In 1784, Philadelphia physician and Revolutionary War patriot, Dr. Benjamin Rush (1746 – 1813) was the first American physician to describe alcoholism as a disease. Rush was a civic leader in Philadelphia, where he was a physician, politician, social reformer, humanitarian, and educator. Dr. Rush was also a member of the Continental Congress, signer of the United States Declaration of Independence, Surgeon General of the Army during the American Revolution and founder of Philadelphia Medical College and Dickinson College. His study of mental disorder made him one of the founders of American psychiatry. In 1965, the American Psychiatric Association recognized Dr. Rush as the "father of American psychiatry."

Dr. Benjamin Rush

Dr. Rush is also known as the father of the American temperance movement. In a 36-page paper titled An Enquiry into the Effects of Ardent Spirits on the Human Body and Mind, he described habitual drunkenness as a "progressive and odious disease" and that total abstinence "suddenly and entirely" was the only effective treatment.

In 1810, a few years before his death, Dr. Benjamin Rush called for the creation of "sober houses" where alcoholics could be confined and rehabilitated. These "sober homes" were the forerunner of treatment centers.

COMING

SOON!

Next month, in September's edition of One Day at a Time, we will cover Step Nine, Tradition Nine, and the Ninth Step Prayer and Principle.

In next month's newsletter, we will also learn that by asking God to be the master-builder of our lives He will show us how to build a strong foundation for the 'house' of our lives ... in just twelve steps. Plus, we will take a look at the Jack Alexander Article About A.A. (P-12) that was published in the Saturday Evening Post in March 1941 to learn why some people become alcoholics, according to this informational pamphlet, which became responsible for a surge of interest that established A.A. on a national basis. Lastly, we discuss the Ninth Step Promises, which for almost everyone in A.A. is the inspiration and hope that we have in the Program. But we learn that we have to be "painstaking" in our development.
